Causes:

A number of health conditions, allergies, genetic factors, physical and mental stress, and irritants can cause dermatitis.

Atopic dermatitis often occurs with allergies and frequently runs in families in which other family members have asthma or hay fever. It usually begins in infancy and may vary in severity during childhood and adolescence. It tends to become less of a problem in adulthood, unless you're exposed to allergens or irritants in the workplace. The exact cause of this disorder is unknown, but it may be due to a malfunction in the body's immune system. Stress can exacerbate atopic dermatitis, but it doesn't cause it.
